Arnold Contract Announces Debut Resimercial Collection with Designer Danielle Palmadessa

The DRP Collection, a collaboration between Arnold Contract and Danielle Palmadessa, debuts in New York this fall.

New York, NY (October, 2021) – Arnold Contract, a premiere American maker of hand-crafted contract furniture, and award-winning designer Danielle Palmadessa debuted the DRP Collection during New York Design Center's What's New What's Next 2021.

The DRP Collection marks Arnold Contract's first commercially available Resimercial line and is largely inspired by mid-century modern design. Blending texture and modern wood finishes with clean lines, the DRP Collection delivers executive level design for a total office solution.

"I have been designing custom furniture pieces with Arnold for our residential clients for years, so developing our own Resimercial collection was a natural next step," said Danielle Palmadessa, Chief Designer and Principal of DRP Interiors. "We started with a desk and credenza and let the collection grow from there. We wanted to create an executive level collection that feels natural for both an office or residential setting."

In bringing the curated collection to life, Arnold Contract leveraged the skills of the craftspeople at its 65,000 square foot New Jersey factory. The collection includes several new finishes that required experimentation with cerused application and glazing.

The six-piece collection includes a desk, credenza, floating bookcase, built-in bar, console table, and ready-fit millwork wall panels. The pieces are representative of Palmadessa's modern approach to interiors with a streamlined elegance that has been brought to life by the master woodworkers at Arnold Contract, led by partners Eric Arnold, Glenn Arnold and Ben Kolax.

"I am excited to be collaborating with Danielle and her emphasis on materials and craftsmanship, both of which are the very hallmarks of the Arnold Contract brand," said Eric Arnold. "For this collection, we experimented with a combination of distinguished materials, clean lines, and new finish colors to create fresh pieces that are a natural fit for residential applications.”

The DRP Collection is on display at the Arnold Contract showroom at the New York Design Center, Suite 1315. Learn more about the collection at <https://arnoldcontract.us/products/drp-collection/>
